WRH 333. African American Autobiography. 3 Credits.
This course is an introduction to textual analysis through the study of African American autobiography, from slave narratives such as Frederick Douglass’s 1845 Narrative, to late twentieth century memoirs such as Audre Lorde’s Zami and Barack Obama’s Dreams from My Father. Students will investigate “African American” as a category for literary criticism and engage how the genre has both contested racist oppression from slavery to the present day and responded to the pressures of representing race. Students will further examine the styles and structures of self-expression within black-authored memoirs and what effect such texts have on understandings of race in historical and literary contexts. Students are urged to develop critical, academic language that both speaks and acts to address racism. This course will also support students’ development of skills as literary scholars to embolden them to read actively, write probingly, and act courageously.

Gen Ed Attribute: Diversity Requirement, Writing Emphasis. Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

This course considers how visuals are employed and deployed in response to particular rhetorical situations and the cultural, social, historical, and economic factors that create these situations.

Typically offered in Spring.

WRH 342. Document Design. 3 Credits.
This course provides an introduction to document design, a key characteristic of rhetorically effective documents. We may not always notice when a document is designed well, but we certainly notice when a design is ineffective. In this course, we'll explore how visual and verbal elements combine to create meaning and practice basic design principles as we create projects for the class and for clients.

Typically offered in Spring.

WRH 343. Visual Rhetoric in Comics and Graphic Novels. 3 Credits.
This course will closely examine how comics and graphic novels draw on language and images to create visual narratives. Students will learn a basic vocabulary for talking about visual narrative from theorists like Scott McCloud, Will Eisner, and Molly Bang, and then they’ll turn their discussion to a series of graphic novels. How do the images in the novels construct a narrative? What happens in the gutter? How do comics and graphic novels use language and images to do real cultural work?

Gen Ed Attribute: Humanities Distributive Requirement. Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

WRH 345. Professional and Technical Editing. 3 Credits.
