Program of Study

The M.A. in English offers three tracks: one in literature; one in writing, teaching, and criticism; and one in creative writing. In the literature and writing, teaching, and criticism tracks, students may choose between thesis and non-thesis options. Students in the creative writing track must write a creative thesis. The master of arts in English helps students attain a number of goals. It offers opportunities for the study of language, literature, rhetoric and composition, pedagogy, creative writing, and literary and cultural critical theory. The diverse and comprehensive selection of courses cultivates scholarly knowledge and enhances cultural literacy in an atmosphere that engages students intellectually and creatively. The program prepares students to enroll in advanced graduate programs (for the Ph.D. in literature or composition and rhetoric, for example), to teach literature or writing in select secondary schools or two-year colleges, and to enter a range of other professions in which writing expertise, analytical thinking, and cultural competencies are valued.

The Certificate in Publishing is dedicated to providing high quality preparation for diverse publishing and related new media careers. WCU's certificate program distinguishes itself by its online courses and an interdisciplinary curriculum that can be completed in as little time as eleven months. The WCU program aims to equip its students not only with a well-rounded, hands-on understanding of contemporary publishing and digital media but also with multifaceted knowledge of publishing history and media transformations.

In addition, the Department of English welcomes students who wish to take courses for professional growth and provides assistance and advice to students on achieving their professional goals. The Department of English also participates in an interdisciplinary program leading to the Master of Arts in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages. (See the section "Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (http://catalog.wcupa.edu/graduate/arts-humanities/teaching-english-speakers-other-languages/)."

Master of Arts in English

The M.A. in English offers three tracks: Literature, Writing, Teaching, and Criticism; and Creative Writing. The Literature and Writing, Teaching, and Criticism Tracks have a thesis and non-thesis option. The Creative Writing Track requires a creative thesis. All tracks are 36-credits, require a capstone experience, and share a six-credit common core (ENG 500 and ENG 501).

Certificate in Publishing

The Certificate in Publishing benefits from its innovative integration of media history with professional training and its incorporation of the theoretical with practical application. The required foundational course focuses closely on the effects of technological and cultural shifts on writing, publishing, and reading over the centuries. This historical perspective equips graduates with an especially rich understanding of current media transformations and thus enhances their ability to navigate and respond to the rapidly changing environment in which the publishing and media industries operate. All students complete an internship as part of this program.

Courses

ENG

ENG 500. The Discipline of English Studies. 3 Credits.
An introduction to key analytical/paradigmatic concepts shared across the discipline and to the academic skills/methods appropriate to graduate level study in English.
Typically offered in Fall.

ENG 501. Critical Theory. 3 Credits.
Study of various methods of theoretical analysis and critique associated with the discipline of literary, cultural, and rhetorical analysis and the application of these methods to specific literary and cultural texts.
Typically offered in Spring.

ENG 503. Manuscript, Print, and Digital Cultures. 3 Credits.
This course studies the history of the creation, production, distribution, circulation, and reception of the written word. As it traces how authorship, reading, publishing, and the physical properties of texts have altered over time, the course examines, both historically and analytically, the intellectual, social, and cultural impact of changing communications technologies against the backdrop of our current digital age. This historical perspective uniquely equips students with the skills and knowledge to navigate effectively the transformations affecting the publishing and related media industries. Distance education offering may be available.

ENG 504. Methods & Materials of Publishing. 3 Credits.
This course is designed both to familiarize publishing certificate and graduate students with the components of contemporary publishing and to afford them the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in proofreading and copyediting. Distance education offering may be available.
Typically offered in Spring & Summer.

ENG 506. Critical Pedagogies & Literacies. 3 Credits.
This course introduces student to two complementary bodies of literature: critical literacy and critical pedagogy. Students will analyze the educational system’s role in maintaining or challenging diverse values, policies, and interests. To do so, students will ask questions about what we teach, how we teach, who we teach, and who we are as teachers: questions designed to frame the educational system socially, politically and institutionally.
Typically offered in Spring.

ENG 508. Writing Seminar. 3 Credits.
Experience in nonfiction prose writing: discussion and development of major projects. Repeatable for Credit.

ENG 509. Writing Seminar in the Novel I. 3 Credits.
A course in the writing and preparing of book-length manuscripts (novels, novellas, and ‘nonfictional’ novels) with the intention of submission for publication. Also includes coverage of fictional aspects and techniques used in writing memoirs, biography, and current history. Repeatable for Credit.

ENG 515. Technical, Scientific, and Medical Editing. 3 Credits.
This online graduate course will provide an introduction to the rhetorical principles and practices of editing in technical, scientific, and medical contexts. Though you may not yourself become a professional or technical editor, you will most likely be asked to edit and provide actionable feedback on the writing of others. In this course, we will study what technical, scientific, and medical editing is, how the terrain of editing is shifting today, what roles editors play in various kinds of organizations, and the diverse processes used to get the work of editing done.
Consent: Permission of the Department required to add.
Distance education offering may be available.
Typically offered in Fall, Spring & Summer.

ENG 516. Publishing and Media Internship. 3 Credits.
This internship is designed to provide onsite, supervised experience in publishing or media work specific to the student’s focus of study (e.g., editorial, marketing, production). In conjunction with the internship, students will complete a capstone project in which they produce a paper analyzing how the internship has contributed to their professional development and a portfolio documenting the work completed. The portfolio is intended to demonstrate professional skills and competencies You must meet with the Certificate Program Director the semester previous to taking this course to select desired placements, apply for internships, and complete the internship agreement form.
Pre / Co requisites: ENG 516 requires prerequisites of ENG 503 and an additional 12 credits of certificate track electives.
Typically offered in Fall, Spring & Summer.

ENG 518. Medieval English Literature. 3 Credits.
This course is a variable-topics offering. It may study a particular period in the Middle Ages, a particular genre, or a particular theme. Readings in Old and/or Middle English, along with needed translations, will be assigned as well as critical readings and research assignments.
