NON-DEGREE STUDENTS

"Non-degree" is an academic term used to describe students who are "not formally accepted into a degree-seeking program." Registering as a non-degree student permits high school students to gain experience, gives current college students an opportunity to learn at another institution, and allows community members a chance to grow on a personal or professional level.

Non-degree students take the same courses as everyone else and earn the same college credit. Non-degree students are not eligible to receive financial aid; however, they may take advantage of other services offered by the University, including:

• Access to a myWCU student self-service account and e-mail address
• Payment plans
• Student services, including use of campus libraries, computer labs, health services, and career development services

Candidates will be permitted to take classes at West Chester University as a non-degree student if they meet the minimum enrollment requirements based upon their highest level of education. Students must also possess the necessary prerequisite coursework and/or demonstrate, prior to enrollment, minimum performance competencies required for a particular course. There may be certain circumstances when a former, denied, or recently accepted degree-seeking student may not be permitted to register in the non-degree program.

International citizens who are in the United States on a visa, with exception to a student visa or tourist visa, may be eligible for non-degree study. Certain visa types do allow for incidental study while maintaining their current visa status in the United States.
