Programs of Study

Undergraduate students can choose from two different B.A. degree options: Communication Studies and Media and Culture. These degree paths provide opportunities to take courses in a range of courses including interpersonal and intercultural communication; mass media and public relations; and rhetoric and public communication. The department also offers an M.A. in Communication Studies with an accelerated B.A. to M.A. program available for students in both majors. Majors are expected to meet with their advisors to plan a course of study, to select courses prior to scheduling, to discuss career opportunities, and to keep abreast of departmental co-curricular activities. Students are provided with handbooks to inform them of requirements for each program in the department.

Communication Studies (COM) is a re-designed major in the Department of Communication and Media. The new design provides students with a comprehensive and in-depth study of communication. Students in COM will be prepared to ethically employ learned strategies across career fields such as sales, corporate communication, human resources, government, entrepreneurship, and non-profits.

The COM major is grounded in a three-pronged framework, which empowers students through a well-rounded education to become effective and persuasive communicators. Students majoring in COM are introduced to public, organizational, and relational communication contexts through focused plans of study, each of which is designed for comprehensive exploration and skill building. Students graduate with a clear understanding of how to execute professional and personal communication strategies across in-demand fields and industries.

The Media and Culture (MDC) program is intended for undergraduate students who want to develop specialized expertise and skills in media-related fields, be able to use and create content for a variety of media technologies, and think critically about the intersections of media and diverse cultural contexts. Students will be prepared to enter a wide range of fields in the global workforce including media production, broadcasting, advertising, strategic communication, social media & PR, international media, diversity training and development, and others. They will begin their careers with a versatile skill set and a professional portfolio of their work developed through hands-on coursework, internships, and practicum experiences.

Departmental Student Activities

The Forensic Teams (speech and debate), the radio station, the WCU Studios, Students in Communication, Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), Lambda Pi Eta, and the National Association of Black Journalists are student organizations that involve department faculty and resources. The activities of these organizations are open to all students. For more information see the "Student Affairs (http://catalog.wcupa.edu/undergraduate/student-affairs/)" section.

Department Internships

Internships are available for academic credit for highly motivated and academically successful students who meet the department's requirements. The department encourages students to take internships to enhance their academic studies with work experience in a professional organization. The internship is one of the Capstone experience options for Media and Culture majors. Students have been placed in congressional offices, radio and television stations, and local industries. Students and their placements are screened to assure mutual satisfaction for all parties involved. For details, students should check with the department's internship coordinator and/or the department's website (http://www.wcupa.edu/communicationStudies/).

MDC 314. Games Culture and Theory. 3 Credits.
More people are playing video games than ever before, but what does it mean to be a gamer? What does it mean to be part of gaming culture? How does theory help us understand the impact of video games on us? In this class, we will explore video games, both classic and contemporary. You will not only play them, but you will also deconstruct your own relationship with video games themselves as well as humanity's. You will explore the ways people are influenced by games, and the way that games influence culture and society, for better and for worse.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 314 requires prerequisites of SPK 208 and COM 219, or MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 316. Mediated Communication: The Internet, Culture, and Society. 3 Credits.
We communicate using technology every day. In fact, our digital communication technologies are so pervasive that they seem almost invisible as most of us increasingly rely on some form of media in order to communicate with one another. Technologies such as Facebook, Twitter, SMS, e-mail, and any number of other programs have blurred the lines between interpersonal and mass communication, causing us to rethink how we understand human interaction in this new mediated world. Mediation has challenged some of the most basic assumptions of how we form relationships, both with each other and with ourselves, and how technology can be used to enhance or inhibit these relationships. This course examines the effects that digital mediated communication technologies have on our everyday lives, personal identities as well as our interpersonal, intrapersonal and organizational relationships.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 316 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Typically offered in Fall & Summer.

MDC 317. Advanced Video Production. 3 Credits.
This course explores advanced television production processes. Topics covered include proposal and budget writing, visualization and storyboarding, composing and staging shots and the advanced use of editing tools in pre-production, production, and post-production.

Pre / Co requisites: MDC 321 requires prerequisites MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 322. Culture and Organizations. 3 Credits.
Organizational dynamics can be understood to operate using deeper assumptions and values, much like national cultures. Different scholarly approaches to culture are used to craft strategic responses to practical organizational challenges using the media. The particular cultures of media organizations are also analyzed using case study examples.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 322 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Distance education offering may be available.
Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 323. Media Audiences. 3 Credits.
Media scholars and practitioners have long been interested in understanding and measuring ‘the audience’. Increasing levels of media convergence, fragmentation, and polarization present many new challenges for making sense of media users. The purpose of this course is to explore various assumptions of media audiences and the different methodological attempts to measure them. First, students will explore a ‘push’ media perspective by examining mass communication media effects research. Students will examine pop culture texts of today and learn more about ratings analysis. Next, students will reflect on critical responses to emergent audiences through ‘pull’ media research. Here, students will learn more about audience reception research and the many ways in which audiences experience and make sense of media technologies. Finally, students will examine how these different approaches inform the concerns, questions, methods, findings, and implications of audience research today.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 323 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Distance education offering may be available.
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, Summer, Winter.

MDC 325. Strategic Social Media. 3 Credits.
This course is designed to explore the influence of digital historical landscape, best marketing practices and mobilization through social media in the twenty first century. We will address key concepts in the field of new media, including issues such as media literacy, personal identity, community, globalization and the convergence culture. It is necessary to question whether there is anything “new” about these new technologies by comparing them with historic media transformations of our past. Once an adequate understanding is gained of the historical and present landscape of new media, we will learn to utilize technologies for personal online reputation management. Finally, we will critically explore how to best market new media by examining various business models and theories in the field, as well as how organizations and businesses utilize new media most effectively. Students will have an opportunity to apply course concepts to a final social media marketing project.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 325 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Distance education offering may be available.
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, Summer, Winter.

MDC 350. Advanced Intercultural Communication. 3 Credits.
Intercultural communication examines communication across various areas of difference: age, race, gender, class, orientation, region. Graduate Intercultural Communication examines the relationship between communication and culture. Analysis of communication variables as they relate to the communication of difference and the ways in which difference matters in everyday intercultural communication are examined. Emphasis is placed on the influence of culture on the communication process, including differences in values, assumptions, and communication practices/rules.

Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 360. African American Culture and Communication. 3 Credits.
African American communication explores the ways messages, verbal and non-verbal, produce, maintain, transform and repair reality for Black community members over the media and in interpersonal contexts. As such, the course explores the significance of discursive identity construction in the media and in human interaction. We aim to develop intercultural communication competency in this subject area. We accomplish this as we examine the ways in which Black/African American identities have been discursively and socially constructed, sustained, problematized, celebrated, and enacted in media, institutional, and societal settings. The dynamic process of acquiring, managing and executing the rhetorical qualities, patterns of thinking, values, assumptions, and concepts which constitute subjective culture are explored.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 360 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 370. Event Production Using Media. 3 Credits.
Producing a large event requires strategic leadership to coordinate multiple stakeholders to achieve concrete goals. The media play a variety of roles in this complex production process. This course considers application of theory and research to the practical problems of envisioning and executing events on a larger scale using a variety of mediated forms in different supporting roles. Students learn how to make a persuasive pitch about media use to different audiences.
Pre / Co requisites: MDC 370 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251.
Gen Ed Attribute: Speaking Emphasis.
Typically offered in Fall.

MDC 375. Communicating Through Risk and Crisis. 3 Credits.
Explores the challenges of risk and crisis communication before, during and after high profile events. The course emphasizes the practical and theoretical applications of media strategies used by companies, organizations, and governmental bodies before, during, and after crisis situations. The course focuses on the issues relevant to communicating risk through both new and traditional media strategies as well as planning and executing crisis communications and recovery plans. The course also introduces students to ethical accountability and informed decision making during crisis situations. Cases discussed will examine risk and crisis situations in business, political, educational and non-profit settings.

MDC 470. Intercultural Communication Training. 3 Credits.
Intercultural training is an experiential activity that engages cognitive, behavioral and affective learning to help individuals to bridge cultural differences in their communication. This course teaches students the theory behind intercultural training for the workplace through the experience of workshops and through designing their own workshops. The use of media in training workshops is addressed explicitly using theory and experiential examples. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 470 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251. Typically offered in Fall & Spring.

MDC 490. Special Topics Seminar in Culture. 3 Credits.
The mass media is a staple of modern-day society. We have interactions daily with media messages, both intentionally and unintentionally. Media researchers have been examining the impact of the mass media on individuals' thoughts, attitudes, and behaviors since the Industrial Era and continue to investigate the influence of newer technologies. This course will take an in-depth look at the critical and empirical research into the different discussions and theories on how the media affects people, both at an individual and societal level. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 490 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251. Typically offered in Fall & Spring. Repeatable for Credit.

MDC 491. Special Topics Seminar in Production. 3 Credits.
This course serves as an intensive examination of a selected area of study in the field of media production. Specifically, the seminar will focus on the creation of short-form videos. Videos currently account for over half of all internet traffic, with the average length of videos decreasing each year. Online users are interested in short, professional-quality video content. We will examine the art of creating short video content through three sections. First, we will examine the history and production of short videos on social media. Second, we will study tips for creating short videos in an abbreviated time frame through the film race genre. Finally, we will apply knowledge to creating short videos for business settings. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 491 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251. Typically offered in Fall & Spring. Repeatable for Credit.

MDC 492. Special Topics Seminar in Strategic Communication. 3 Credits.
This course serves as an intensive examination of a selected area of study in the field of strategic communication. Specifically, the seminar will provide an in-depth examination of audience behavior for public relations, social media, and content marketing specialists. Understanding audience behavior in a convergent media environment has never been more important or difficult to achieve. By focusing on research tools used to understand audience demographics and psychographic characteristics, incorporating these findings into strategic media campaigns, and utilizing communication research methods to monitor and evaluate results, students will be better prepared to enter the field of strategic communication. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 492 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251. Typically offered in Fall & Spring. Repeatable for Credit.

MDC 493. Directed Studies in Media and Culture. 1-3 Credits.
Research, creative projects, reports, and readings in communication studies. Students must apply to advisors one semester in advance of registration. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 493 requires prerequisites of junior or senior status, a minimum GPA of 2.5, and MDC 250, MDC 251, MDC 252, MDC 253, MDC 254, and MDC 255. Consent: Permission of the Department required to add. Typically offered in Fall & Spring. Repeatable for Credit.

MDC 494. Internship in Media and Culture. 1-12 Credits.
The internship provides students the opportunity to gain vital hands-on work experience in the communication discipline that cannot come from classroom experience alone. The program is designed to provide students with exposure to professional opportunities related to the field, as well as helping them to build their resumes and begin developing a network of industry contacts. Credits earned vary based upon the amount of time spent on the job. All internships must be approved by the Department's Internship Coordinator and must meet federal guidelines. Note: This course fulfills the requirement for an MDC major to complete an internship or practicum as part of the major. Pre / Co requisites: MDC 494 requires prerequisites of MDC 250 and MDC 251; one upper-level MDC course; the student must be a declared MDC major; and have a cumulative GPA of 2.8 or higher. Consent: Permission of the Department required to add. Typically offered in Fall, Spring & Summer. Repeatable for Credit.

MDC 495. Media & Culture Capstone Practicum. 3 Credits.
This practicum is a supervised, in-house internship, which allows students to apply the concepts and skills learned in MDC courses to professional settings. Under the supervision of the practicum director, students will work with clients including (but not limited to) local nonprofits, businesses, and campus entities such as campus media (The Quad, WCUR, and WCU Weekly). Pre / Co requisites: MDC 495 requires prerequisites of MDC 250, MDC 251, and at least 15 credits of MDC coursework completed. Consent: Permission of the Department required to add. Typically offered in Fall & Spring. Repeatable for Credit.

SPC 199. Transfer Credits. 1-10 Credits.
